MAPLE LEAF POSSIBLY NEXT PRODUCING WELL

What A Tour Of The Wells Now Reveals

From the appearance of actual operations in the Wainwright Oilfield it certainly appears as though the "beans will be split" in fine shape this season and that the camouflage of the past as to Oil Production here, will be in reality a thing of the past.

WAIN. OIL PRODUCERS
The Wainwright Oil Producers' fine standard drilling plant is now in operation almost in the town limits, and can be seen from the verandah of the Wainwright hotel when looking west down Second Avenue. It certainly looks good to see the big smoke stack pouring forth its smoke, and the big arm of the walking beam, pounding away with a fifteen inch bit at the end of the drilling cable, and we are informed that drilling is to be continued night and day. The consensus of opinion of the Wainwright Oil Producers' Syndicate is well lined up for a big oil-gusher, and naturally, because of its close proximity to the center of town, the Citizens of Wainwright are very much interested as the drill goes down.

BRITISH PETROLEUMS LTD.
The British Petroleum Squid in their No. 4 well last week, and their No. 3 well is also drilling away at a record breaking pace. These two immense rotary drill plants are the wonder of the field, and it only requires an atom of intelligence to conclude that the British Petroleum must know without any doubt in the world, that we have an immense oil field right here at Wainwright, otherwise why all this tremendous expenditure in the shape of the latest and most expensive rotary drilling plants costing such an immense sum of money to experiment with.

All the public asks is that all the companies play the game fair and let the suffering public into the secret. Our esteemed contemporary to the contrary, the Editor of the Star found upon a visit to the drilling sites of the "B. P. Company," that nothing but open handed hospitality exists at the camps for after a pleasant drive with Mr. Emmens, the superintendent and Mr. Lamb, his able assistant, during which time the whole of the undertaking was most thoroughly described and outlined to the "pen-pusher," he was regaled—literally regaled—with a truly sumptuous repast at the camp conducted at the No. 3 well.

The camps—both of them are fully modern in every particular with running water (hot and cold), baths, electric lights, and a regular wizard of a cook.

The drilling at the No. 3 well is now down below the 700-ft level with things going splendidly all the time, while at No. 4 well, which is immediately south of the No. 2 (producing) well, and from which the gas is obtained for heating purposes, the big machine is pushing the bit down to ward the 300 foot mark. Tons of casing and material is still being teamed out to the well sites, and it may be truly said the B. P.'s are out for the liquid gold in the fullest sense of their striving.

MAPLE LEAF OIL CO.
This company is drilling away as hard as it can about one mile west of the No. 1, Fabryk. Mr. R. E. Williams managing director of the Company reports to be down some 500 feet with Driller Credle in charge, and to use his own words, "I'm quite confident that the next few weeks will see the completion of another producing well (mark the words, "Another producing well.") and that at the 500 ft level the log correlates with the drilling in the No. 1 Fabryk well, and also with the Brit. Petroleum wells (which should rightfully be termed the Biggest Oil wells on the entire Continent). We congratulate the Maple Leaf Oil Company on its choice of a Driller, as well as to choice of its drilling location for the first well, and on being so close to the Wainwright field proper.

GLOBE DRILLING CO.
Next on the list of five wires is the Globe Drilling Company, with Mr. R. Higginson and competent driller now looking over the field close in to Wainwright in a North-westerly direction with a view of deciding on a drilling site, it being the Globe's intention to go to the hat right away.

WESTERN CONSOLIDATED
Then, let us not overlook the Western Consolidated Oil Company, Limited. This Company has about completed the erection of an up-to-date Standard Rig about 3 miles straddling North of the Town of Wainwright, backed by the Edmonton and Local capital, and rumor has it, some very strong Calgary men as well—all we can say is, "The stronger the better," and from appearances at the well, it looks as though spudding-in day is not very far distant.

BRITISH ALBERTA PETS. LTD.
In addition to what we have now stated regarding the actual drilling here in the Wainwright field, we are pleased to notice that a New English Company is interested in the Wainwright Oil Field, and has been registered in London, England—This is the British Alberta Petroleum Syndicate, Limited, with headquarters in London, England. It has a nominal Capital of 300,000 pounds Sterling divided into one pound shares, and has adopted the agreement with Mr. Jocelyn Percy to acquire various grants, concessions and privileges in Canada. The Company has announced its readiness to enter the Wainwright field and to sink at least Ten Wells by next May. With the six wells now being drilled in this field, (and quite a number being already announced that will commence soon) and the British Syndicate's Announcement of Ten wells assured, the Wainwright Oil Field certainly should be very near due for the Big Excitement in Oil circles, and let the appropriate slogan be "KEEP - YOUR - EYE-ON WAINWRIGHT."

AT THE LOCAL WELL

Driller Bradley and his staff have now completed the initial stages of the installation at the well site and spudded in the big seventeen-inch bit on Monday last. There is no doubt whatsoever that it will be only a short while before this site will see a large production of gas, which indeed is being anxiously awaited by the citizens of the town and district from an industrial standpoint.

Field Manager Walton states that the work is progressing very nicely on location, and no expense is to be spared in the attempt to bring in Wainwright's very own oil well right here in town.

SCOUTS FOR STATES OIL COMPANIES VISIT WAIN. FIELD

Movement Predicted When Next Well Brought in—American Firm Are Keeping Watch on Development; Ready to Act

Oil "scouts" for a number of the big drilling companies in the United States are now living in Wainwright district, watching developments, and promptly reporting to the head offices across the line. "There is every indication that we are on the verge of a real oil boom backed by the production of oil," says one member of a company who returned to the city after a visit to the field; "there are lots of genuine oil men here now just waiting to see how things are going to move, and I predict that after the next well is brought in we shall see something stirring in northern Alberta."

"Scouts" from Texas, California, and Oklahoma are at present in the field, while as well there are several well known drillers and their crews Harrington who brought in a big southern "gasser" for the Rogers interests is in town and has with him his engineers, tool dresser and other mechanics.

Another driller named Hood, is on the ground and has a contract to drill some wells for an American firm which has purchased leases in the territory, while there are others of the same cult present.

Dr. Dodds, our local dentist was spending a few days in the city on business.

Mr. "Bill" Crowe is now the proud possessor of a new Chev. sedan, and claims it's the real thing for enjoyment.

His Company Is Making Headway

R. E. WILLIAMS
Early in January, 1924, R. E. Williams managing director of the Maple Leaf Oil Co. Ltd. authorized the selling of the first shares of the company's stock. Drilling at the company's first well in the Wainwright Fabryk field will begin this week.

This rapid progress is regarded as a record in financing by directors of the Maple Leaf Oil Company.

Mr. J. Coombs is president, 25 years a resident in Vancouver, James Black of the C. P. R. is vice president, 25 years resident in British Columbia; P. A. Hedderley late manager of Huron & Erie Mortgage Corporation is a director, 25 years a citizen of Alberta, and J. C. Bremner of Bremner, Alberta, pioneer business and financial man of the western provinces and also Bessie Dennis of Vancouver.

Mr. Williams has secured the services of P. C. Beresford as field superintendent. Mr. Beresford was for years with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, the largest oil company in the world. D. O. Credle is head driller. He brought in the British Petroleum wells No. 1 and No. 2 in the Wainwright field.

The Maple Leaf Oil Co. Ltd. has some very choice acreage in the Wainwright field, and are drilling a big up-to-date machinery, and it is confidently expected that the next strike in the field will be made at this company's No. 1 hole.

The No. 2 well for the Maple Leaf Co., is now under way, the big rotary machinery having been ordered and the derrick timbers are on the ground, on the road. On Friday last, at the 350 ft level a flow of gas was encountered at the well, and from what we learn from those in charge the log is proving practically identical with that of the B. P. producers which suggests well for the ultimate and immediate success of the Maple Leaf investors.

Field Manager Fred Beresford, who is an oil man of world-wide experience, as well as the officials of the company are confident that the well should come in at about the same horizon as the other wells here, which should give production in about a couple of weeks or so.

The Maple Leaf is now operating under a Dominion charter, and we learn are likely to make application for a carbon black plant permit.

Arranging For Big Sports Day

The special committee which was appointed by the Agricultural society to make the necessary arrangements for the big sports day to be held on August 10th, are sure getting down to work. They met on Sunday evening last and spent considerable time in outlining a gigantic programme, and just as soon as all details are complete the announcements will be published. The committee are determined to make it a red-letter day in the annals of the sport. All it needs is CO-OPERATION.

It Sure Does Pay

As a proof that advertising in The Star is a profitable investment, the following speaks for itself. In our last issue Mr. A. Dupre advertised a Ford sedan for sale under "Classified Warrants" and before the paper had been published six hours Mr. Dupre phoned us to discontinue the insertions as he had just sold the car to Mr. P. D. Laird. Thus two people were made happy and The Star had again proved that "It Pays To Advertise!"

LOCAL NOTES

Last week end saw an exodus of summer campers forth their tents and steeple away—to the beaches—for the next two months.

Mrs. J. Tomic and children left on Sunday's train for a two month's visit with friends and relatives in the east. Mr. Tomic will follow at the end of the month.

The W. I. are announcing a picnic to be held at Morissette lake (old Bean place, on Wednesday July 9th, when refreshments, ice cream, etc. will be served. All are invited.

Miss Jean McLean, who has been a resident for quite a long time left last week end for the city where she has accepted a position.

CAL. WAIN. DIRECTORS VISIT FIELD

That there is a great future ahead of the Wainwright oil field was the opinion expressed by H. C. Ralph Vice President of the Cal Wain Oil Company of Vancouver B. C. in an interview with The Star.

Asked for his opinion of general conditions in the field Mr. Ralph states that he is agreeably surprised with the evidence of progress in the way of development shown by the number of new derricks and drilling outfits in the field since his last visit here. He also praises very highly the fine equipment and businesslike manner in which Newton Emmens and his company the British Petroleum Oils Ltd. are conducting their extensive operations.

Mr. Ralph is in the field inspecting new lease holdings his company has recently acquired in Section 13-45-7-4 which is South of the British Petroleum No. 2 producer, and South West of their number 3 now drilling. Maple Leaf, Mutual Oil, Globe Oil, and other companies are among those interested in this district, from all indications evidenced in this field at the present time he says he can see no logical reason to look for anything but success for the future of the oil industry here.

After some time spent at the Imperial yard, Mr. J. Carscaddon left for the coast on Monday's train.

A full report of the big C. N. R. picnic at Mott lake will appear in our next issue.

THE EXAMINER'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF PROV. MARKETS

BEEF—Prices on the good to choice; butcher's steers about steady, with choice exporters at $6.25 and choice light and heavy butchers $5.26 to $5.50 good $5.65 to $5.75; medium $4.60 to $4.80 common $3.40 to $3.50. Choice cows $4.75 to $5.00; good $3.50 to $4.00; medium $3.00 to $3.50 common $2.25 to $2.75; canners $1.25 to $1.75. Butts unchanged with tops at $2.50; common $1.75 to $1.75. HOGS
Edmonton market showing firmness, and sales during the latter part of the week at $6.85 to $7.00; old cars, thick smooth; bacon 10 per cent premium.

SHEEP
Nominal prices quoted at Edmonton owing to light receipts, choice lambs probably around $12.50; yearlings $10 and ewes, fat $7.

GRAIN
Markets have been good during the most of the week and in view of the favorable crop conditions which are reported over a very large proportion of Alberta, there is every reason for the farmers to feel satisfied. Over a lot of the province it will be a good crop and some of it very good, according to present prospects. Rain is needed in some of the districts southeast of Edmonton and on southward for some little distance.

BUTTER - CREAM - CHEESE
BUTTER—Alberta prices are now on an uniform quotation of 30c 28c 25c and 20c, at centralizers and 20c off at country creameries; production is approaching the peak now. CREAMERY BUTTER—Cartons & prints are unchanged, car lot prices will be around 31c, Alberta points, has is specials; Vancouver not buying much yet; Montreal keeping up well. DAIRY BUTTER—Markets are buying fancy grade of table at 26 1/2 to 27c, at 16 1/2 to 18c. CHEESE—Prices unchanged and market rather quiet.

EGGS - POULTRY
EGGS—Calgary dealers quoting advanced with extras 19c, No. 1 17c, No. 2 12c, cracks 9c. Edmonton on basis of 20c for extras. POULTRY—Some owl moving, but prices lower, with heavy hens, live, at 13c; light 11c; broilers 22c to 25c.

HAY
Cutting first crop of alfalfa started in some districts. Very little business reported by dealers; prospects of good crop in most of province are encouraging.

POTATOES
Trading quiet and only local demand to take care of; $18 is good price on Calgary deliveries, other grades down to $14.

EDMONTON EXHIB. AUTO RACES TO BE FINEST POSSIBLE

With their usual thrills and sensational automobile races are again to be the feature attraction at the annual Edmonton Exhibition and Stampede according to a statement issued by Manager W. J. Stark. Monday evening July 14th the opening day of the Exhibition is the time set for the he-googled dare devils to line up their moonshiners and if hope runs true to form Edmonton will see the greatest list of celebrities that have ever been seen on the local course.

All events will be professional and they will be run under the rules and with the sanction of the International Motor Contest Association the dirt track controlling body.

The Handicap world speed king and dirt track champion of the world has already signified his intention of being in at the Edmonton events and he will be seen at the wheel of his fleet little Miller Special the same machine with which he defeated Ralph DePalma, and a number of other celebrities on the Ascot speedway last winter. Haug said well take a stab at his track record which he set two years ago with his three wheel minute World Wonder Car the fastest automobile in the world.

5000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA

The public will welcome the new issue of "5000 Facts About Canada" for 1924 that remarkable cyclopaedia of the Dominion compiled by Frank Veigh, of Toronto, the wellknown Canadian writer and lecturer. Over fifty chapters deal tersely with every phase of our national prosperity and progress, and is not only a valuable information, but a stirring story of our development. The issue includes much new matter, and contains many other improvements. We are not surprised that this booklet has a continent, empire and worldwide circulation, or that it is widely used by governments, railways, and financial and industrial houses. Copies may be had at 30 cent each from the Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 388 Huron St., Toronto, or from leading news-dealers.

The Misses Matthews, of Jarrow, are spending a holiday at the guests of Miss Alice Hart in town.

BROWNLEE DEALS WITH RESOURCES FROM DOM. GOV.

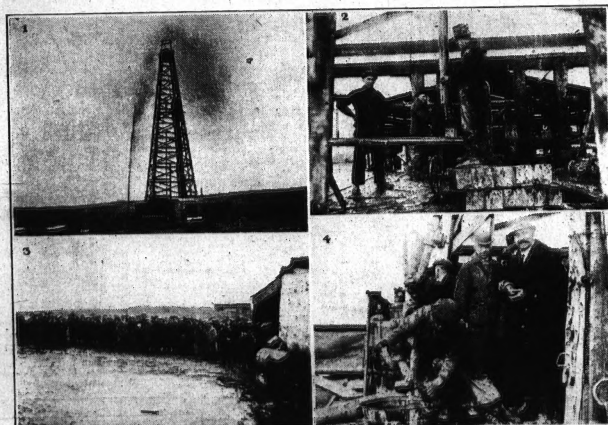

LETHBRIDGE.—There was a large attendance of members of the Board of Trade at the luncheon held to welcome Mr. Attorney-General Brownlee, now on a southern tour. The minister dealt with the question of the natural resources in a very concise and comprehensive fashion.

The attorney-general stated that some maintenance of the civil authority from the federal government virtually equalled the revenue from the resources, and the province was saved the expense of administration. "I do not hold with that view, for I look for the next ten years to bring great development in the fact natural wealth of our province, especially along the lines of our coal and petroleum resources," said Mr. Brownlee. There was nothing to be gained by waiting for he was hopeful of seeing oil discovered in the not far distant future; also the development of the coal trade east and west.

The Dominion premier, said Mr. Brownlee, had made a definite offer of handing over to Alberta his resources providing the subsidy were dropped. The province demanded a better offer and asked for an accounting. This was found to be costly and almost impossible beyond the year 1905. Then the Ottawa government offered three years' subsidy, or about $1,800,000 in the form of an accounting, but this offer was refused because that sum was not enough, in the opinion of the province. The status of the question was placed before the legislature at the last session, when the government was instructed to accept a definite proposition.

Hon. Mackenzie King was committed to 1905, said Mr. Brownlee, but they were still hopeful of avoiding this expense by agreeing on a cash consideration. The negotiations would be continued after the present session at Ottawa.

Two Hearts That Beat As One

In her childhood Muriel Elliot felt that she was different from all other children; and as she grew older her consciousness of the difference increased. She thought about it frequently with a grave and self-congratulatory air, but in her own opinion not with any vanity.

That is to say, her understanding of vanity was that it concerned the body and material things—people were vain of their beauty or riches, and Muriel held beauty and riches in actual contempt, although she possessed both.

At least she expressed this view up on her sixteenth birthday, when she began the writing of a book about herself, not intended for immediate publication but to be discovered in its hiding-place and given to the world after her death.

"Sixteen! I am sixteen today! How far away sixteen used to seem how long the path I trod that led to it! And now that I have reached the goal I find that new paths reach ever onward and open before me. How much there is still to be learned."

"How often in former idyllic days have I experienced the longing to write the records of my intimate self just as I am—and not as I appear to the family and others! But I was not ready then because I did not know myself. . . . But now the time has come at last although no living eye but mine own will read these words. . . . until the last strains of my life thread are snapped I feel that it ought to be started. . . . So I will write of myself in this white book papa has presented me with."

He doubtless thought it would be employed like an ordinary diary. . . . being my father. . . . mais que voulez vous.

"The self I show to others of the outer world is a self that is like a marquee of my self. That outer self of mine is considered rather intractable I believe. . . . I know as well as anybody that my mirror shows me and once a man told me in bitterness he believed I was full of vanity. . . . It is far away now and using a lofty Senior at Exeter probably still has that opinion, but I wonder what he would say if he could see these pages. I care no more than the winds that play what my mirror shows me than the vanitas that play."

"Vanitas, Vanitas! Omnium vanitas the sage quoth, and I, too, scorn vanitas. . . . To care what my mirror shows me or costumes and equipments and the family position would be nothing but vanitas. But what is myself, that self intimate."

"As I look about me and see beneath the surface of the other girls I find that some are often guilty of hypocrisy, and though others may be less so, all live only in the present. . . . they read nothing. . . . they chatter and laugh. . . . and are merely shallow. The boys are less guilty of hypocrisy but equally shallow. . . . I do not write this down in haste as if I had not thought about it thoroughly. . . . They seem not to possess the power of thinking."

"From my earliest childhood I have felt that my self intimate was not like theirs. They are merely animals with some knowledge of behavior taught by their parents and school. For instance, there is not a single one of them I could expect to understand what I am writing now, than they could be expected to fly like orioles in the skies of laughing April. . . . La jeunesse savant ren."

"I wonder when the unfolding years have past what my older self intimate will think of these stages when I look back upon them at twenty or even twenty-two. Will I say, 'There, little girl, you afford some amusement.' Or will I be a little touched and turn away quickly? I do not know but I know that my thoughts are very lonely."

"Perhaps somewhere in the world who will understand. . . . perhaps."

Muriel at twenty knew more about smiling than she did at sixteen; she was two inches taller, and she had become even prettier, but her view of herself had not essentially altered though naturally she felt that it had deepened. Her loneliness among the shadows was still profound and while her expression of it was of course more sophisticated than the first entry in the white diary the sense of being different was the same.

The wasters of stale marshland Murky, bat, infinite, In the middle of it all Stretch uselessly to the bat sea. There stands one figure, Is it ice Or stone? What is that statue So alone in universal shallows?

Is it I, Is there another anywhere In distant wastes and?

If there were, would that be You This "You" to whom she addressed her inquiry was a being still undefined that misty "One who will understand" the possibility of whose simultaneous presence in the world she had surmised at sixteen. The unfolding years had failed to unfold him, although a young gentleman just across the street had offered and even pressed himself as a candidate for the position.

Nothing could have been more unfortunate than this fact that he lived across the street from Muriel, who had no eyes for anything so familiar as there was one summer Sunday afternoon, in particular, when, at the closing episode of a disagreement in which the families of both were involved, Muriel showed him so nearly tender a kindness of word and manner that he was indeed too greatly encouraged. Sitting with him in the shade of a mulberry tree on her lawn, the next morning, she discovered what an exorbitant conclusion he had drawn from her impulsive moment of friendliness.

"Renfrew Mearl! she said, interrupting him with the emphasis of sudden dismay. "What was that you called me?"

"Why, only 'Dear' he explained, a little surprised. "I just thought—I mean I was thinking—I thought it would be all right to call you 'Dear,' or anything like that, this morning I thought 'Dear' would be the best to start with."

"Things—things like that," he replied hesitating nervously. "I mean starting things like calling you 'Dear' and everything like that. Of course, though. . . . But here he paused, a slightly troubled purpleness shading the brilliant cheerfulness of expression he had hitherto worn. "Of course, though—of course—"

"Of course, what?"

"Of course if you'd rather we didn't use such-such terms—if you'd rather

we didn't use those terms—"

"What terms?"

"Dear," said young Mr. Mearl.

"Mean 'Dear' and terms like that, I was not going to call you any of em before anybody yet. I was only saying it to you, like this, without anyone around."

"But why were you saying it to me?"

"Why?" he repeated, his puzzlement obviously increasing. "Well, I thought it would be—I mean I suppose they do."

"Who do?"

"Why, everybody that—that—I mean when it happens like this."

"Something seems to be the matter with you," Muriel said, with a frankness not infrequent in the conversations of young people who live across the street from one another. You were trying to explain why you called me 'Dear,' but you're getting incoherent."

"No, I'm not," he protested earnestly. "I'm not getting that way at all. I am telling you why I called you that."

"Well, then, do it, please."

"Well, I didn't know you'd think my calling you anything like that might be in bad taste."

"I hardly see it in that light," she said. "What on earth makes you think taste has anything to do with it?"

"Well—well, anyhow, that's the only way I could account for it," he returned uncomfortably. "I didn't realize your taste was old-fashioned, Muriel."

"Old-fashioned?" she cried. "It?"

"Yes," said, "I mean like my grandmother."

At this she uttered a slight outcry.

"What?" he inquired.

"You find me like your grandmother she said with recovered suavity."

"I mean I do this way," he replied.

"I mean I don't think she ever called my grandfather anything but 'Mr. Mearl.' My father says he never heard her call him anything in his life. They probably neither of 'em ever called each other by their first names, because grand father always called 'Mrs. Mearl,' too. Father says they did it when they were alone together just the same as other times. I suppose it was the fashion then, or the way they were brought up, or something like that."

"But you said I was like your grand mother!"

"I meant about things like that."

"Gracious!" she cried. "I never called your grandfather 'Mr. Mearl.' I never saw him!"

"No, I know you didn't. I mean she probably thought it wasn't in good taste to call him 'Dear,' the way you do Muriel."

But at this, Muriel made gestures of desperation. "I don't call your grandfather 'Dear' do I? He's dead, isn't he?"

"Yes," said Renfrew. "I meant the way you think it isn't good taste to call people 'Dear.'"

"Do you?" she asked. "Do you think it's good taste to call people 'Dear'?"

"Why, no," he said in deepening perplexity. "I wasn't going to call anybody that except you. And he added: 'I didn't understand you did not believe in it.'"

This additional remark of his appeared to be an unfortunate one for Muriel's naturally high color was enriched, not with a tender sentiment, but with exasperation. "Believe in it?" she cried. "So it was your idea until just now that I believed in letting everybody call me 'Dear'?"

"Why, Muriel!" he exclaimed.

"Do you suppose I'd want you to let anybody call you that?"

"Anybody else but whom?"

"Anybody else but me," he answered mildly. "I'm afraid I don't just express myself as clearly—"

"You certainly don't," she interrupted. "I asked you why you said 'Dear' to me, and you said you called me that because you didn't realize I was like your grandfather. No, I don't consider that particularly clear."

"But what I meant," he said, passing a hand over his forehead, "I meant she didn't believe in it with her husband."

"Her husband!" Muriel cried. "She didn't believe in it with her husband?"

"She thought it wasn't good taste," Renfrew continued. "But—you—well of course you already call me by my first name. You always did. As a matter of fact, Muriel, we could not either of us call each other by anything but our first names without feeling foolish and I thought—"

"Stop!" Muriel commanded. "What connection is there between what your grandfather called her husband and what you called me?"

"Why, simply this," he said patiently. "I mean, simply this: if you feel the way she did about those things, why of course I'd try to be like grandfather about to but I don't suppose you'd want to go to the lengths they did. Don't you think it would sound foolish if I called you 'Mrs. Mearl'?"

"No, I don't," she replied with almost startling clarity. "I think it would sound insane!"

He seemed relieved, though he was surprised at the vigor with which she had expressed herself. "Well, I do, too, Muriel," he said. "I don't really believe you'd want to carry it as far as that, but I'd have done it if you'd wanted me to, though."

"You'll have done what?"

"Called you 'Mrs. Mearl,'" he said smiling fondly—too fondly, as it proved; for Muriel rose to her feet with such the effect of leaping into the air.

"What?" she cried.

"What is it Muriel? What's the matter?" he asked solicitously, rising too.

"Explain yourself!" she said.

"What do you mean by saying you would call me 'Mrs. Mearl' if I wanted you to?"

"Oh I didn't mean now," he said, I meant after we were married."

He laughed absently. "Why," he said, "I don't care for that sort of facetiousness."

Renfrew was beginning to be seriously irritated. "But I wasn't trying to be facetious," he said. "I would not joke about a thing like this Muriel. Not about our being—our being—"

"Go on. About our being what?"

"Renfrew! I don't care for that sort of facetiousness."

"When I said—well when you said what you did."

"I said nothing of any particular importance, it seems to me."

"You didn't?" he cried incredulously. "Muriel didn't you mean it? Why, you said—"

"I said that both your family and mine had been taking your little sister's quarrels with my little brother too seriously. I saw that even I had been rather foolish about it, and—well I admit you seemed to have been more sensible about it than the rest of us. I believe I told you so. Do you consider that of any overwhelming importance, Renfrew?"

"Yes, but—" he said, and again rubbed his troubled forehead.

"But what?"

"Why it was the way you said it, you asked me—You wanted to know why I let you be so foolish. 'Why did you let me?' That's what 'you' said, Muriel."

"Yes. What of it? What's that got to do with your talking about calling me 'Mrs. Mearl'?"

He stared at her, apprehension becoming poignant in his eyes. "Why, didn't you mean it?"

"Certainly I did. I meant I hoped you'd be kind enough to laugh at me if you saw me taking the children's quarrels too seriously in the future. I admit that I'm apt to be too serious about such trifles. What has that to do with—"

"You didn't mean it?" he interrupted. "I certainly didn't mean any more than that."

"Oh! he said pitiously. "Oh, my!"

"Is it possible you thought—Good heavens! You thought I meant—"

"Why, yes," he said. "Of course I did."

She made without words a sound half regretful, half indignant, frowned at him in silence for a moment, then spoke. "Renfrew, I don't know what to say to you for making such a—oh, such a preposterous mistake as that! How on earth could you think such a thing?"

"I don't know," he said, turning his stricken eyes away from her. I just did I don't know how it happened."

"You thought I meant. I was willing to be beguessed to you!"

"Yes I guess I did. And still looking away from her, his attitude being not without a pathetic dignity, he murmured: "I beg your pardon."

"I suppose you'd better," she said quietly. "And I suppose after this I'll have to be careful never to show you any personal friendliness."

But here he was able to turn and face her with some show of spirit.

"Oh, no, I shan't make the same mistake again. You don't think it's so pleasant. I'd want to go through it every day or so, do you?"

"But how could you think such a—"

What Does This Trade Mark Mean?

You will see this shield-shaped trade mark in hardware stores everywhere. You won't see it on cheap, inferior goods. It goes only on household utensils of the highest quality, yet selling at moderate prices, because of the tremendous quantities sold each year.

Choose cooking and baking utensils that carry this trade mark. Choose SMP Enamelled Ware, with its very hard, smooth surface. Heats faster, cleans easier, imparts no metallic flavor, causes no dangerous acid reactions. Ask for

FARM HELP SUPPLIED

FREE SERVICE NOW OFFERED BY COLONIZATION AND DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT
Canadian National Railways

The work of this department is being rapidly extended throughout Western Canada to be of the best possible service to the public, and through its special representative in the East, in Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and other European countries, it will be able to bring to Canada large numbers of immigrants, male and female, who in a short time should become permanent and desirable settlers. The great obstacle in the past has been the uncertainty of immediate employment for the arrival and farmers can assist colonization work by employing their help through this channel and if possible by THE YEAR. The work is done without charge and no advances are required for transportation or for any similar purpose. All information given is tried for the purpose of informing the settler requiring work only.

WAINWRIGHT, ALBERTA JULY 2nd 1924

DOMINION DAY

1867—1924

Borne on the wings of the morning,
There sweeps a glad refrain
Across the snow topped mountains
Through forest-land and plain,
Through the little towns and hamlets.

The cities far and wide,
The song of a happy people
To Canada, their pride.

They sing of men and women
Named in the Book of Time,
Who made for a new born nation
The sacrifice sublime,
They sing of their devotion
Unchanging as the tide,
To the land of pine and maple
To Canada, their pride.

THE SWING OF
THE PENDULUM

Hon. J. E. BROWNLEE, who is on a speech-making tour of Southern Alberta, is giving an account of the governments recent activities. Whether one agrees with all Mr Brownlee's claims on behalf of the government or not it will be generally conceded that a minister does well when he takes the trouble to go about the province advising the people of what the government has done or plans to do.

With one point advanced by the attorney-general, there will be unanimous agreement. He is appealing to the Alberta people to aid in the enforcement of the present liquor act, and to give the fullest measure of support to Commissioner Dinning.

Mr. Dinning has shown every inclination to use the powers vested in him by the Liquor Act broadminded good sense. All who have to do with the operation of the act should reciprocate by strict observance of the law.

The recent plebiscite in British Columbia on the sale of beer by the glass must have carried a warning to all who, in Alberta, will have to do with the sale of beer. Resentment developed in British Columbia, largely because it was felt that the brewers were following up the advantages the law there allowed them, too vigorously, and the plebiscite resulted in a negative vote.

The public is in a sensitive frame of mind on this liquor question. By exercising good judgment by observing the law carefully, by giving every support to the commissioner, those who are selling beer in this province, by wholesale and by retail, can conserve respect for it and prevent a swing of public opinion in the opposite direction.

LETTERS TO
THE EDITOR
RE CARBON BLACK INDUSTRY

Editor Star,

Dear Sir:

The action of several officials of the Edmonton City Council recently together with reports in the papers of that city must be very interesting to the people there. First we have Mayor Blanchford wiring the Dept. of Interior that progressive legislation be suspended.

The reasons are hard to understand whether it fears for Edmonton's interests on interest in some company that wants to harvest this field. The reason is hard to define as the request is not supported by any eminent geologist, while on the other hand we have the reports in our papers of eminent
New York geologists who say central Alberta is the largest gas and oil field in the world.

Those men say such an industry does not establish an industrial center. Other reports say we import annually from the U. S. three and a half million pounds of this commodity. Other say we can produce this at home and also supply Australia, New Zealand, the Orient, and the U. S. with this product. Now, if we have this material we should develop it.

Now, if those Edmonton officials who have become so interested would read the reports in their own papers their nerves might calm down. I admire the quick action of the Wainwright Council in opposing such reactionary interference with legislation approved by our representatives. And would say that Edmonton should reconsider their action in this matter and respect other's rights.

There are a large number of owners of gas and oil rights in this district, some acquired by purchase, others by lease, and as the United States has been referred to why not adopt their principles when transferring the natural resources to the province and give every homesteader an interest in his homestead.

Hoping that reactionary interference will not be tolerated at Ottawa but that development be continued and encouraged. The increase of exports should follow and when the country becomes prosperous we will have all the immigration we want without assistance as well as holding the youth of this country that are now drifting across the boundary.

Plenty Of Money For Mines

That Canada could readily secure in London, England, all the capital required for the development of her mineral resources, provided those interested in mining properties could show the investor mineral deposits worthy of development, was the statement made by Sir William Maxwell, K. B.
E. in an address at The Pas, Man., a few days ago. Sir William, prominent English mine owner and writer, was on his first visit to the Herb Lake gold camp, during his tour of Canada over Canadian National lines.

Equipment Exhibit Impressive

Locomotive engines of the type, of passenger trains daily over Canadian National lines, may soon be seen spe-cied along the rails in distant and little known Siam, as the result of a visit paid by Prince Purachatra brother of the King of Siam, to the building of the Canadian National Railways at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley a few days ago. The types of equipment which chiefly attracted the distinguished visitor to the exhibit were these engines, and the section of colonist, tourist, first class, din ing and sleeping cars, which are shown in actual size and fitted in every detail as cars ready to take passengers across the continent. The Prince was very much impressed with this type of equipment and expressed the opinion that it would be most suitable for the transportation needs of his country.

BULLETIN FROM PROVINCIAL GOVT.

Activity in Southern Alberta

Considerable activity in Southern Alberta is noticed this spring. Among the large development projects is the building of the C. P. R. branch line from Kipp to the Little Bow River, traversing the new Lethbridge Northern Irrigation project. The C. P. R. is also building a large irrigation dam at Kimball for its system in that district. The Calgary gas company is spending $600,000 in the construction of gas pipe line from the Foremost field to connect with its line from the Bow Island field supplying Southern Alberta towns as well as Calgary and Lethbridge with gas. A new Indian school is being erected on the Blood Indian Reserve near Cardston.

Alberta to Chicago by Phone

Further extension of phone connection between Alberta and distant parts of the continent has been established. Last year the opening of the new long distance line from Alberta to Manitoba took place. This year it has been possible to effect telephone connection as far east as Chicago.

Dates for First Corn Show

Dates for Alberta's first corn show have been set for November 13 and 14 at Medicine Hat. This year about 100,000 acres of corn are being grown in Southern Alberta.

French-Canadian Visitors

A party of French-Canadian visitors have left Montreal for a tour of Western Canada over the Canadian National Railway and will spend a day or two in Edmonton district, arriving in Edmonton July 5th. They will investigate particularly the St. Paul de Melis district northeast of the city. The object of the tour is to see the settlement possibilities of the West.

Developing Fish Industry

A modern fish freezing plant will be installed at Lesser Slave Lake with a capacity of 150,000 lbs. of fish, for the further development of the fishing industry on this lake, it is stated.

Enthusiastic War on Weeds

The greatest co-operation is being offered by municipal districts all over the province, with the provincial Department of Agriculture officials engaged in the campaign against weeds states W. J. Stephen, Field Crops Commissioner. Never before has there been such co-operation among all concerned in this work. There is operate in this work, and many of them have already appointed weed inspectors. In some cases the councillors themselves are acting as inspectors. Through the efforts of the government officials and councillors of municipalities, individual farmers are undertaking experiments in weed control, so that at the end of the season it will be possible to form definite conclusions as to the best methods of handling the weeds of the province.

Shipments of Grain

Railway companies operating in Alberta have shipped a total of 152,615,776 bushels of wheat between September 1st of last year and May 31st of this year, being the 1923-24 crop shipping season. In addition to this the railways report a total of 11,196,899 bushels of 163,812,575 bushels of but from this must be deducted about 20,000,000 bushels to allow for the quantity received from points in Saskatchewan which are included in Alberta division of the C. P. R. and to allow also for duplication in handling of grain coming off branch lines to main transcontinental lines.

Supervisors in Weed Campaign

The field supervisors in the weed campaign are as follows: W. A. Anderson, Field Supervisor, Medicine Hat; Geo. A. Ingram, Field Supervisor, Raymond; C. C. Kelley, Field Supervisor, Pinched Creek; H. T. Harris, Field Supervisor, Claresholm; E. W. Brunsden, Field Supervisor, 627-11th Avenue; W. C. Calgary; H. Phillips, Field Supervisor, Medicine Hat; A. P. Shuttleworth, Field Supervisor, Chinook; Supervisor, Wetaskiwin; J. Bonner, Field Supervisor, 109 Springdale Block Edmonton; E. H. Buckingham, Field Supervisor.

Sixth Fortnight Crop Report

Corn of the new crop in practically all parts of the province has been retarded by the cool weather of the past fortnight, and in many districts the grain has been almost at a standstill. The past week, however, has seen the advent of warmer weather, and during the past five days the crops have been brought to the stage where heavy rain is necessary to maintain healthy growth. This feature of the situation is emphasized in nearly all reports received, in some districts the need of moisture being urgent.

The south-west part of the province has been favored with an abundance of rain during the past fortnight, and is to-day showing the most satisfactory conditions with respect to the growing crops. South of Calgary to the international border rain has been general in nearly every locality.

The south-eastern part of the province is still much in need of rain, only local showers having visited this territory in the past two weeks.

In the central and northern parts of the province the grain though greatly retarded by the backward weather, is showing a fairly healthy growth, and has been considerably benefited by the belated warm weather, but is in need of rain at this date.

General rains will be needed over most of this territory within the next week if the grain is to continue satisfactory progress. The crops in the Grande Prairie and Peace River districts show some improvement since last report, owing to showers of rain which visited these districts in that period, but further rains will be needed shortly.

Frost occurred on several occasions since last report, and grain in some districts suffered slightly. Grasshoppers have shown up seriously in some localities, but are well under control and will cause little damage to grain. The first cutting of alfalfa in the southern districts is now under way, and the crop appears to be satisfactory. Pasture is rather poor on account of lack of moisture.

ROLLING STONE SCARES QUARRY MAN TO DEATH

"Paul Jones, a laborer, was working in a quarry when a large stone became loosened and began rolling towards him. Jones tried desperately to get out of the way, then stumbled and fell, the stone passing over his right leg. When the other laborers went to him they found he was dead.

"Coroner Kelly said that although

Jones leg was crushed, it was not sufficient to cause death, and that the man undoubtedly had died of fright.

The above item, taken from a daily newspaper, illustrates the power of mind over matter.

Shakespeare put it this way: "There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

If you think you are dead, you are. If you think your business is bad, it is.

If you think your town is a poor place to do business in, that condition of mind will help to make the town more dead than it already is.

Of course when you reverse the thought you get directly opposite results.

If you are up and going you will get somewhere.

If you decide you can make your town a good place to trade in and if you work with the other merchants to make it so, you will have one of the best towns on the map.

You are the architect of your own fortune.

Passenger Trade Increases

According to a Vancouver harbor report there were 421,147 passengers landed in Vancouver during 1923, as compared with 365,192 in the previous year. During last year, Vancouver imported 1,917,242 tons of general merchandise and 99,282,838 feet of lumber with a total value of $224,496,277. Against this the exports were 1,523,311 tons of merchandise and 492,552,806 feet of lumber, a total value of $133,189,453.

Elimination of Degeneration Potato Diseases

Degeneration diseases of potatoes are those such as mosaic, leaf curl, curly dwarf, spindle tuber and the like which are known to be spread in the field by aphids, plant lice, and which can only be eliminated by removing the source of infection. The source in every case can be traced to tubers which were formed in diseased hills the previous year. The aphids feed on the plants arising from these tubers, and when they go to healthy ones they carry some of the infection with them, and in the course of feeding, inoculate the juice from the diseased plant into the healthy one. In the course of a few weeks the formerly healthy plant is diseased.

In order to prevent the spread of these degeneration diseases it is necessary to go through the field about the time the plants are eight to ten inches high and pull out all that appear undesirable. In doing this be sure to remove the entire plant system, including the seed piece. The removal of plants in this way is known as "rogue" Two or three weeks later the field should be given another thorough inspection and all diseased or undesirable plants rogued. It is also necessary at this time to remove foreign varieties which may be present. Should it be necessary to rogue a field after the tubers have begun to form, care should be taken to remove these as well as the plant. This will reduce to a minimum the danger of disease being carried over to next year's crop by means of the tubers.

The Wainwright Star

(Adapted From "The Yarkton Ent erprise")

Every meeting, whether of the public, or of a society, club, or association, should be advertised in the local paper.

By advertising the meeting, those interested have an opportunity of knowing about the affair beforehand, and can plan accordingly.

The chances of getting a good attendance at these functions are increased by newspaper advertising, because the paper carries the message to its readers, while other forms of advertising, such as posters, handbills, etc. require the reader to come to them, and they cost more.

Teas, Sales, Dances, Concerts, etc., can all be given publicity through the columns of the local paper.

Implement, Feed, Seed Grain, Stock, Houses for sale or rent; all these can be advertised cheaply and effectively through "The Star".

The advertisement will be read by everyone in a wide district, and the result from it will thereby be increased.

Advertising in the local news column is 10c per line per issue.

TWO HEARTS THAT BEAT

"I said I didn't know how it happened."

"Never mind!" She cut him off thus sharply, walked a dozen impatient steps away from him, turned and came back, her color higher than ever.

"Didn't I tell you only last week I'd never seen any man I'd dream of marrying?"

"Yes. But I thought you were just sort of talking, Muriel. Probably most every girl says that, now and then."

"Oh, then you think I'm like 'most every girl, do you?"

"No, indeed, I don't."

"Well, I hope not," she said with natural indignation. "And the man I marry won't be like most every man, either!"

"I suppose you mean he won't be like me, Renfrew said smiling unhappily. "I suppose he—"

"If ever he comes!" Muriel interrupted, "he'll be a man I can talk to on my own plane, a man that will understand me. That's all I ask; just one thing. And if it ever happens—if it ever happens—"

"Well, what then? Renfrew asked as she paused.

"I would follow him," Muriel said her eyes glowing. "I would follow him to the ends of the earth! I would! At his highest word!"

"I don't see what for," her dejected neighbor remarked in a tone slightly argumentative. "I don't see what you'd want to follow him for."

"There!" Muriel cried. "That's like you, Renfrew; you don't even understand my figures of speech!"

"And this—this other man—he would?"

(Concluded next week)

CHURCHES WILL UNITE DURING HOLIDAY SEASON

During the months of July and August the services at the Presbyterian and Methodist churches in town will be held as follows:—Each Sunday morning services will be held in the Presbyterian church at 11 a.m. and in the evening at 7.30 p.m. in Grace Methodist church. During the month of July the services will be conducted by Rev. J. McLagan, while Rev. G. Pybus will be in charge for the month of August. This arrangement has been made in order that the minister may enjoy four week's uninterrupted holidays.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Magistrate: "You are charged with being a deserter, having left your wife. Are all the facts in the case true?"

Prisoner: "No, your honour, I not a deserter. I am simply a refugee."

Motorist: It's preposterous. I am an expert driver. What I know about driving would fill a book."

Constable: "What you don't know would fill an hospital. Give me your name and address."

"My dear, did you hear that Mrs. Humphrey was taken very ill the other day while trying on a new hat? I was at the store at the time."

"How dreadful! What was it trimmed with?"

seriou—h...

Mrs. Casey: "Tan't yer husband better yet?"

Mrs. Murphy: "Oh, sure he's all right, but he can't go to work yet 'cause he's got some medicine left over that he's got to stay at home and finish."

"I have a pal whose only fault is that he is rather mean about buying drinks."

"He is bound to be unpopular if he goes about lowering other peoples' spirits."

Tom: "I hear that Ted has had an accident."

Bob: "Yes, someone gave him a tiger cub and told him it would eat off his hand."

"Well!"

"It did!"

Dentist: "Here's something strange. You say this tooth has never been worked on before, but I find small flakes of gold on my instrument."

Patient: "I think you have struck my back collar stud."

"Waiter, are you deaf?"

"No, sir. Why sir?"

"The possibility occurred to me that when I asked for liver you thought I said leather."

Medicine amuses the patient; but it's nature that cures the disease.

REVERTS
of the series dealing with the establishment of the Bank of Montreal at representative points in Canada and elsewhere.

IN VANCOUVER AND VICTORIA

THE completion in 1886 of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a project that had received the moral and financial support of the Bank of Montreal, cast a bright ray of promise across the then somewhat troubled economic life of Canada.

Canada at last was spanned by rail from coast to coast, opening up for profitable development the fertile territory lying between.

The Bank of Montreal signaled the completion of the line by establishing a Branch at Vancouver and later at Victoria, thus completing its transcontinental chain of Branches and bringing to the Pacific Coast banking facilities essential to the development of the great economic potentialities there.

Of its 567 Branches, 55 are situated in the Province of British Columbia.

Here and There

A party of 50 Australian boys will be the guests of the Exhibition at Toronto from August 30th to September 3rd. They are public school boys from all parts of Australia and their visit to Toronto will be made on their way home from the British Empire Exhibition.

British Columbia is now the third manufacturing province of Canada, with 2,878 manufacturing establishments, over 41,000 employees, invested capital amounting to nearly $225,000,000 and a value of products of approximately $260,000,000, according to Government statistics.

New Brunswick in 1923 produced more coal than at any other time in her history. The output for the year exceeded that of 1922 by more than 12,000 tons and amounted to 251,091 long tons. It is estimated that this industry creates a value of over $1,100,000 annually, most of which goes out in supplies and wages for the benefit of the province.

What will probably be the last big roundup of horses in the West will take place shortly in the range country south-east of Calgary, Alberta, for the purpose of clearing the range of stray horses. The horses will be gathered in one central corral, where owners may claim their animals. It is anticipated that about 10,000 animals will be secured. The Department of Agriculture is supervising the arrangements.

Unstinted praise from prominent citizens and the press of Alberta is given the Canadian Pacific Railway in connection with the Company's recently announced branch line construction program, affecting the southern portion of the province. C. E. Mitchell, member of the Provincial Legislature for Bow Valley, describes the announcement as the most important made in many years.

"Perhaps the most noteworthy fact we discovered was the vastly improved psychology of the people of the west to that which existed a year ago," commented E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on his return from a recent inspection of the Company's property. "They are full of hope and confidence and realize, as the east should realize, the tremendous benefit to the whole of Canada of a second consecutive large harvest."

The number of big industrial undertakings projected for immediate construction on the coast of British Columbia provides a striking indication of how that province is going ahead. A $400,000 logging railway up the Shehalls River Valley, a $1,000,000 mill plant at Chemainus, a $200,000 amusement centre at Victoria and a $200,000 sawmill at Port Coquitlam, with about $10,000,000 in power plants in the Seave Lake District are some of the more important and a host of smaller projects are also under way.

Practically all Canada's production of newsprint for export in March was absorbed by the United States. Of March shipments amounting to 127,583 tons valued at $9,756,580, the United States received 125,848 tons, valued at $9,617,823. The only other Canadian exports of newsprint of importance were 509 tons to South Africa and 1,037 tons to New Zealand. It is expected that April shipments will show an even greater proportion of consignments to the United States.

The concentration camp for emigrants to Canada and the United States maintained by the Canadian Pacific Railway and other steamship companies, is located at Southampton, England. It has an average daily attendance of 600 and, on some days, the number is about 1,000. Comfortable quarters and neat at moderate cost are provided and features of the camp are the special dining-room for Jewish passengers, the private shower baths, with towels and bathing gowns supplied and the individual rooms which are also available.

Mr. A. Ruskin has moved his family into the Selters house on Main street.
